

Editor Predicts World Triumph For Communism

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 22. (P)—Pravda's editor, in the presence of Premier Stalin, declared last night that this is the century of Communism, not of Wall Street.

At the same time P. N. Pospelov, the editor who addressed Soviet leaders on the 25th anniversary of the death of Lenin, declared Soviet Russia has an "unshakeable will for international cooperation." He reminded his audience of Stalin's assertion that peace is possible between the differing systems, but bitterly attacked "Anglo-American warmongers."

(Pospelov's speech appeared to be the latest development in the East-West cold war in which there have been signs of a Soviet drive to convince the world she wants peace. He spoke just a day after President Truman in his inaugural address called Communism a "false philosophy" and predicted its followers in "due time would recognize democracy's strength, abandon their delusions" and join with the rest of the world in an international settlement.)

Four Crewmen Dead In Wreck Of B-29

Plane Plunges In Drifts Near Great Falls, Mont.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 22 (P)—Four of 12 crewmen were killed last night when a B-29 crashed into a snow blanketed field minutes after taking off from the Great Falls air base.

Three were dead in the wreckage when rescuers arrived nearly four hours later. The fourth died in the base hospital. Of the eight injured one is in critical condition.

The 15th Air Force plane was on a flight to its home base at Spokane, Wash., from the Smoky Hill base at Salina, Kans.

A crewman who was thrown clear tumbled five miles through heavy snow back to the base to notify officials of the crash. Four wheel drive trucks were used to plow through four foot snowdrifts to evacuate the injured.

There was no fire after the crash. Planes were sent aloft to drop flares to locate the wreckage. The dazed crewman was unable to guide the rescuers back to the scene.

The nose section was snapped from the fuselage and hurled 100 yards away. The four engines and debris were scattered for 500 yards.

Carpenter Awaits Hearing In Torch Death Of His Wife

Mason, Mich., Jan. 22 (P)—A Mason carpenter was returned to the hospital here under police guard today to await examination for first degree murder in the fire death of his wife.

Victor Vercrussse, 42, demanded examination when he was arraigned before Judge Robert M. Montgomery in Lansing justice court yesterday. He was not admitted to bail. The examination was set for Feb. 9.

Vercrussse made his brief appearance with his hands and arms still bandaged for burns he received in the fire a week ago Friday that claimed the life of his wife, Selma, 40.

Prosecutor Charles R. MacLean issued the murder warrant after he said the wife made a deathbed statement accusing the husband of throwing gasoline on her and setting her on fire. Vercrussse has insisted the fire was accidental.

Cattle And Sheep Losses Feared In Plains Snow Belt

(By The Associated Press)

New snow piled into the west today complicating the job of stockmen and government officials trying to save drift-bound cattle and sheep.

Parts of Nevada, already covered with a snow measuring up to 17 inches, received most of the new blanket.

Meanwhile, the Fourth Air Force was ready at Hamilton Field, Calif., to inaugurate an airlift for livestock in Nevada, and other western states, but waited results of a conference in Washington.

At Ely, Nev., already under eight inches of snow, and one of the points hit by the new fall, George N. Swallow, secretary of the United Stockmen's Association estimated 70,000 sheep are in a critical condition because of lack of feed and exposure. Estimates placed the number of livestock endangered at 200,000.

The stock are in Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Utah in addition to Nevada.

Senators of the six states yesterday met in Washington to ask for emergency legislation.

One suggestion of the conference was that feed be dropped by air force planes. Planes from Lowry Field, near Denver, Colo., have dropped more than 1,000 bales of hay and alfalfa in that area in the past two weeks.

The east got a touch of winter with Maine's first heavy snowstorm of the year. "At least a foot" was the prediction. Snow plows, hardly used this season, went into action to keep roads clear.

The weather picture in other parts of the country wasn't so severe.

President Prepares To Put Democratic Platform In Action

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Washington, Jan. 22. (P)—The inauguration festivities behind him, President Truman shed his party clothes today with a promise to work at pushing the Democratic platform through Congress.

Still brisk and smiling, Mr. Truman went home at 11:10 last night for his first full night's sleep in days, after telling party followers his list of campaign pledges "was not a scrap of paper."

It was another busy day for the president, most of it spent in the company of Vice President Barkley. The two were in high humor. They swapped jokes, joshed each other and kept the crowds who saw them roaring with laughter.

As the day ended, Mr. Truman commented: "I don't think this country ever had a president and vice president who were more congenial."

The president stayed only 25 minutes at the Kentucky State Society's inaugural ball for Barkley at the Shoreham Hotel.

Earlier he had shaken hands with 1,400 guests at a reception by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder—and had followed that with an appearance at a similar affair given by Senator J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman.

He had had less than three hours of sleep the night before and only four and a half hours Wednesday night.

"It's been a wonderful few days," he told the Kentuckians. "But I'm glad it comes only once every four years."

It was at the McGrath reception that Mr. Truman made it clear he has every intention of keeping his campaign promises, if he gets backing from Congress and the people.

He repeated his plea for cooperation at the party for Barkley.

"We must not only have the support of the legislative branch, but also of the people in order to do those things for which we got elected and for which the Democratic party stands," he said.

Rose City Girl, 14, Found Dead In Car

Bewildered Driver Held; Asphyxiation Blamed

West Branch, Mich., Jan. 22 (P)—Michigan state police today released the 22-year-old driver of an automobile bearing a dead teen-aged girl, apparently accepting his story of finding the girl dead when he awoke after falling asleep in the car.

Sgt. Lynn Smith said the youth, Arthur Thayer, told him he had gone for a drive with the girl, 14-year-old Peggy Rosetta Barber, Thursday night. He said he suddenly became nauseated and stopped the car, then fell asleep from weakness.

"When I woke up it was daylight and I couldn't rouse Peggy," Sgt. Smith said Thayer recounted.

Dr. W. G. Gamble of Bay City, Mich., who performed an autopsy last night, said the girl's death was caused by asphyxiation.

Thayer, who had been held all night without charge, was released this morning.

State police who had received a tip from a gasoline station attendant, stopped the youth yesterday as he drove along a road, bewildered, with the girl's body beside him.

Bus Strike Threats Fade In Two Cities

Grand Rapids and Detroit Disputes Compromised

(By The Associated Press)

Threats of public transportation strikes in Michigan's two largest cities faded today.

AFL bus and Streetcar operators in Detroit, who had threatened a 4 a. m. Sunday walkout, decided to vote on a compromise settlement proposal.

At Grand Rapids AFL bus drivers and management accepted Mayor George W. Welsh's arbitration proposal.

The Detroit dispute grew out of a layoff of 175 men in the 5,000 man system. Wages are the issue at Grand Rapids.

In general the Detroit compromise plan, approved by the municipal management, calls for a spreading of work to make room for immediate reinstatement of the laid off employees.

Management said a sharp post-Christmas slump in business had forced the layoff. Some employees, however, work six or seven days a week. It was agreed that a reduction in their hours could meet the problem.

Union members will vote tonight on the proposal.

At Mayor Welsh's request, a strike vote was put off at Grand Rapids as plans went ahead for arbitration.

The operators union demands a 25 cents an hour pay increase and other concessions. A strike vote had been scheduled for Friday.

Search For Missing British Plane With 20 Aboard Given Up

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22 (P)—Search for a missing British South American Airways plane with 20 persons aboard ended last night, Coast Guard air-sea rescue headquarters announced today.

The Coast Guard said no trace of the Tudor-type plane, which disappeared Monday on a flight from Bermuda to Kingston, Jamaica, was found although a vast search was carried on by Coast Guard, Air Force, Navy and British planes and surface craft, including two U. S. Navy Task Forces.

The plane left Hamilton, Bermuda, Monday morning on the spot said there is a 2,000-foot strip of ice a quarter mile from the plane which seems sufficiently safe to permit a light ski-equipped craft to land.

No rescue attempt was made yesterday but supplies were dropped as well as Arctic tents to protect the men from the cold. The temperature dropped to 45 degrees below zero last night. A gas stove and fuel also were parachuted to the spot.

Waves Swamp Boat; 3 Indians Drowned In St. Clair River

Algonac, Mich., Jan. 22 (P)—Searchers combed the icy St. Clair river today for the bodies of three of four persons who drowned Friday when high waves swamped their small boat.

The victims were three Walpole Island Indians returning to their reservation on the Canadian side of the river and the boatman they had hired to take them there.

A fifth person on the boat, 32-year-old Clayton Peters, was saved by rescuers who put out in a small boat.

Searchers recovered the body of Emily Nahdee, 45, but had not found Norman Smith, 29 of Algonac; Joseph Peters, 55, of Laura Smith, 50. Smith was pilot of the boat.

Washington, Jan. 22. (P)—A plan to rebuild the Republican party from the grass roots up, through state and regional conferences, may be proposed to the GOP national committee at Omaha, Neb., next week.

Senator Brewster of Maine told a reporter the idea of sectional meetings has been discussed by the Senate Republican policy committee.

The Senate group yesterday demanded that the national committee consult with the lawmakers before calling any national policy-drafting conference such as suggested by GOP Chairman Hugh D. Scott, Jr.

It instructed Brewster and Senators Capehart of Indiana, Wherry of Nebraska and Butler of Nebraska to urge the party group to name a committee at its Omaha meeting to study the national conference plan, but to delay any actual call until later.

"There seems to be quite a bit of sentiment for starting the work of rebuilding the party on a state level, followed by regional conferences," Brewster said.

He added that he will broach this idea at Omaha next Wednesday or Thursday.

The Maine senator may be named next week as campaign chairman for Republican senators up for election in 1950. He would divide responsibilities with former Senator John Townsend of Delaware.

Brewster said he hopes Republicans in Congress will be fully represented if any national conference is called to draft a policy statement for the 1950 campaign.

Egypt And Israeli Nearing Showdown

Break Expected Soon In Holy Land Dicks

By L. S. CHAKALES

Rhodes, Jan. 22 (P)—Acting U. N. Mediator Ralph C. Bunche called in the heads of the Egyptian and Israeli delegations last night for a show-down in armistice talks.

Bunche's action indicated a decisive break in the conference may be expected soon. The session is regarded as the final step in armistice negotiations which have been snagged in a boundary dispute.

The session began at 11 p. m. (4 p. m. Eastern Standard Time). Bunche and Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief U. N. observer who sits in on all talks, indicated they planned to keep the meeting going all night if necessary to reach an agreement.

Bunche indicated to newsmen that both sides, who have been in almost continual conference the past two days, had about run out of arguments and that some final decision either of agreement or complete breakup of the talks may be expected shortly.

The conference began here Jan. 13.

It was learned unofficially that the Jews were holding out for control of Beersheba, an Arab town in the Negev awarded to the Arabs by the original U. N. partition plan of 1947, but which the Israelis occupied in October. They also demand control of the main inland highway system of the Negev.

Loyalty Affidavit Required For All Employees Of State

Lansing, Jan. 22 (P)—All state employees must take loyalty oaths, the State Civil Service Department ordered today.

Arthur G. Rasch, director, said the oaths were aimed at keeping persons of "Communist sympathies" out of the public employment.

The department issued to all state agencies forms including oath of office and an affidavit in which the employees must swear they do not advocate nor belong to any organization advocating the overthrow of the government by force or violence.

The forms must be sworn to before a notary public, Rasch said.

He explained the procedure was ordered by the Civil Service Commission to "follow the pattern of the federal government."

Oaths of office have been required irregularly since 1941. Rasch declared, but the affidavit of loyalty is new, as is the requirement for swearing before a notary.

"No American would hesitate to sign," Rasch said.

School Heads Ask $82,094,203 Outlay Of State's Money

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 22 (P)—Michigan's school administrators met here today to give their recommendations on the draft of a school aid bill calling for an $82,094,203 outlay of the state's money.

The tentative bill, drawn up by a citizen's committee, was presented to the 300 city and county educators as the Michigan Association of School Administrators opened its convention Friday.

The proposal would increase special appropriations to schools by approximately $1,000,000 over last year's budget.

Senator Taft Skeptical Of Truman Deal

Ohioan Promises Fight Against Tax Increase

Washington, Jan. 22 (P)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has taken a chilly view of President Truman's "bold new program," meanwhile making it clear he still solidly opposes most of the old ones.

In a radio broadcast last night in a radio program, "Meet the Press," the Ohioan, a long-time foe of the administration—

1. Voiced doubt about the president's inauguration day proposal to help under-developed countries by sharing American technical and productive skills and encouraging private investment to improve such areas. Taft said the program "over-promises these nations."

2. Promised to fight the president's $4,000,000 tax increase, and seek instead a $3,000,000,000 cut in the new budget. Every item on the budget, he said, could be reduced from 10 to 20 per cent.

3. Expressed the belief Mr. Truman has ended the bipartisan foreign policy. The president apparently "is not going to consult Republicans as much as in the past," he said.

Taft blamed Republican losses in the last election on his party's failure to explain to the people just what the 80th Congress stood for. He said many of the attacks Mr. Truman made on the Republican-dominated Congress could have been answered.

Third Party Ideas Abandoned By CIO

Farmer-Labor Honeymoon Sought By Unionists

Milwaukee, Jan. 22 (P)—Setting aside all new party thoughts for another year or two at least, CIO United Auto Workers leaders sought today to hitch labor's political fortunes to those of farmers, small businessmen and other potentially powerful groups.

Efforts to bring about a Farmer-Labor honeymoon were much in evidence as the UAW's 2,500 delegate education conference against was broken down into small, workshop sessions.

In many of these discussions the union's top leadership and outside speakers hammered away at one central theme—Keep labor's political action machinery rolling.

Jack Kroll, national CIO-PAC director lent an assist on the subject yesterday. He said more than 500 municipal elections and others for higher offices are coming up this year and warned labor against any letdown in effort. He also said 34 states have "anti-labor legislation of some kind still on the books."

While Kroll made it plain that while the CIO plans to work within the framework of the Democratic party its political action machinery will remain independent.

"We are not going to capture or attempt to capture the Democratic party or the Republican party," he declared.

Paul Bunyan Tales Feature Sinclair's Chalk-Talk Here

The "expanded" history that makes up the story of Paul Bunyan from his birth, notable because of the fact that the delivery chore exhausted five of the largest storks, to his awakening to the need of reforestation is the material from which Arthur Sinclair has woven a serio-comical lecture. Presented at the Wm. W. Oliver Memorial auditorium in the junior high school last night, the lecture delighted a good-sized audience.

Some half-dozen pictures illustrated the recital of some of the tallest tales about big Paul and his adventures. Of particular interest to hunters in the audience were Sinclair's pictures of the Squonk the Frost Biter and the Side-hill Wampus, since they are no longer seen in the Upper Peninsula woodlands.

"Paul loved his backwoods," said Sinclair. "One day he came across a great area of burned-over slashings, for which he was responsible, as a youth. He was horrified."

Sinclair told of Paul's efforts to replant the denuded areas and of the failure of his unaided efforts.

"So what did he do, Did he sit and moan about it? Not Mr. Bunyan! He strode down to Lansing and raised a big fuss. It awakened the legislators and eventually there developed the present conservation department with its far flung forest restoration efforts," Sinclair said.

In closing Sinclair had high praise for former Gov. Chase S. Osborn, who, incidentally, is 89 years old today, and made an earnest plea for the aid from all that is necessary if fire is to be kept from consuming our forests.

Two more lectures in the Hiawatha Wildlife series which is sponsored here by the University of Michigan Extension Service and the Wolverine Conservation association will be given. They are Wild Friends at Home by Walter P. Nickell, photographer-naturalist on Thursday, February 17 and Colorful Michigan by Walter E. Hastings, conservation department staff photographer on Tuesday, March 29.

The "troy" weight comes from Troyes, France, an important trading center where 5,760 grains became the unit for weighing bullion.

CNW Spends $250,000 In Repairing Ore Docks

Annual repairs costing approximately $250,000 are now being made to the two Chicago & North Western ore docks in Escanaba with the work scheduled for completion before March 15 according to B. G. Packard, CNW division engineer.

The work was started Dec. 1 and because of the good weather earlier this winter the project is about 10 per cent ahead of schedule. The number of employees on the job varies from time to time but now stands at 125 men.

Maintenance repair to the dock is annual and the work is done during the winter months while the docks are not in use. It starts soon after the navigation season closes and is completed before the arrival of the first ore carrier in the spring.

For the past several years the North Western has annually spent approximately $250,000 for dock repairs. Last year, the scope of the work was enlarged to include the installation of additional pockets.

Packard said the "lion's share" or about two-thirds of the work this winter is on No. 6 dock where over a period of years all untreated timbers in the lower part of the dock structure are removed and replaced by timbers treated to resist deterioration. The timber replacement on No. 6 dock will be completed this year.

Practically all of the material used in repairing the docks comes from the West Coast the division engineer said. On No. 6 dock about 600,000 feet of structural fir timbers and 100,000 feet of maple will be used. The maple is used for flooring the bottom of the ore pockets. On No. 5 dock 130,000 feet of fir timbers and 70,000 feet of maple will be used in making repairs.

Of the approximately $250,000 to be spent by the North Western for dock repairs this winter, roughly one-half will go for wages paid to men employed from the Escanaba community. Material costs have gone up almost one-third since 1942 and labor costs have increased about 15 per cent since 1946.

Pearson Boiler & Manufacturing company has the sub-contract for repairing the steel chutes on the docks as in past years. The contract cost this year is expected to exceed $7,500.

ICE FISHERMEN STAKE CLAIMS

300 Delta Men Get Set
For Annual 'Rush'

On Little Bay de Noc off Escanaba today commercial fishermen ventured out on treacherous ice in the annual rush to "stake claims" on good fishing grounds where they will later set nets.

The ice was dotted with fishermen and poles as between 75 and 100 Escanaba men risked a dunking in rushing the season. Altogether it is estimated that about 300 Delta county fishermen are setting nets or "staking" claims this winter through the ice on Little and Big Bay de Noc.

The mild winter weather has cost the commercial fishermen thousands of dollars in income, not including the losses of trucks and nets encountered earlier in the season when Big Bay ice broke up. The delayed winter harvest largely affected fishermen at Escanaba, Garden, Fayette, Nahma and Fairport.

Not yet strong enough to hold heavy pound nets, the ice on Little Bay de Noc off Escanaba is being chiseled through by fishermen who are setting gill nets. These nets are equipped so they will trip and fall to the bottom if the ice moves out. They could later be recovered.

Three pound nets have been set near the north shore at Escanaba for smelt, but production so far has been light. About 900 pounds were taken on Thursday and this dropped to about 100 pounds yesterday.

Claims are being staked and nets set between Escanaba and Gladstone for suckers, walleyes and whitefish. Fair catches of suckers and walleyes were reported, but few whitefish have been taken so far.

Although delayed in getting started, Little Bay de Noc fishermen have not suffered the losses encountered by fishermen of Fairport, Fayette and Garden. They had about two weeks of good ice before it broke up into floes, and now they are starting to set all over again.

The shanties of ice fishermen are numerous north of Gladstone toward the head of Little Bay, where perch, walleyes and pike are being taken with hook and line. Several hundred shanties are on the ice and some fishermen have reported excellent catches of walleyes.

Veterans Told How To Reinstate G. I. Insurance Policies

G. I. insurance officials of the Veterans Administration Branch Office at Columbus, Ohio, today offered five "helpful hints" for veterans who wish to reinstate lapsed National Service Life Insurance term policies. They are:

1. If possible, the policy should be reinstated before it has been lapsed longer than three months. In most cases, early reinstatement makes qualifying physical examinations unnecessary.

2. All questions on the reinstatement examination should be answered. Failure to do so means a

Federal Taxes Average $1,234 Per Family To Meet Truman's Budget

President Truman's proposed budget calling for federal expenditures of $41,858,000,000 during the twelve months beginning July 1 of this year will cost Michigan taxpayers approximately $1,960,920,000.

That is the estimate made by the Michigan Survey, a state taxpayer organization, based upon federal tax collections in Michigan, the state's share of the national income and population.

Henry Steffens, survey director, urged that Michigan residents understand that this figure is "One billion, nine-hundred-and-sixty million, nine-hundred-and-twenty thousand dollars, or 5.7 times the $341.6 million Michigan collected in taxes in fiscal 1948."

It is more than four times the $471 million the state spent for all purposes in fiscal 1948, he said.

Michigan has an estimated population of about six million men, women and children. On a pro rata basis, he said, the President's budget will cost each of them $326 next year.

Perhaps you do not believe that women and children should pay taxes. Figuring it another way, the Survey estimates that Michigan's 1,588,600 families will pay an average of $1,234 to Uncle Sam next year.

Getting closer to home, a Survey tabulation shows that, on a population basis, the new budget will cost the people of Delta county $10,588,968 during fiscal 1950.

What can the people of Michigan expect to receive for all these Washington-bound dollars? The Survey shows that approximately 4.68 per cent of the $41.9 billion in contemplated expenditures are allocable to this state.

On this basis, Michiganders will spend more than $314 million to finance U. S. relations with other countries, $668 million for national defense and $257 million for veterans' services and benefits—which adds up to more than two thirds of the total Michigan costs for these three items alone.

Then, Michigan taxpayers can expect to spend about $110 million for social welfare, health and security, $18 million for housing and community facilities, $19 million for education and general research, $78 million for agriculture and agricultural resources, $87 million for natural resources, $74 million for transportation and communication, $5 million for finance, commerce and industry, $9 million for labor, $57 million for general government, $255 million for interest on the public debt and $7 as a reserve for contingencies.

According to Steffens, this is only the beginning. "In addition," he said, "there will be deficiency and supplemental appropriations added from time to time to carry this Colossus of Government through the year. Contract authorizations will be made for work that will run into more billions before completion. Still more billions will be added ultimately to the cost of federal government if new spending proposals are passed."

"People here at home," he said, "must realize that they themselves have to foot the bill for the services rendered by the federal government."

The show dates are Feb. 3, 4, 5 and 6. It is planned to conduct a two-mile race Friday, Feb. 4, and another two-mile race the following day during the ice show.

Dube is training daily. He likes to skate at least five miles every day to keep in shape.

The other day, he skated seven and one-half miles in training and then accepted the challenge of a young fellow over a mile distance. "He couldn't keep up with me," Dube commented.

UNITED FUND GETS SUPPORT

National Heart Ass'n Is Latest To Join

Organized labor, industrial and commercial establishments of Michigan are lending their support to the program of the United Health & Welfare Fund of Michigan, Inc., Renier Wyers, Upper Peninsula field representative, said on a visit to Escanaba today.

The United Health and Welfare Fund was organized in July, 1947, when about 125 community leaders, representing 61 of the state's 83 counties, met at the invitation of Henry Ford II to consider the problems resulting from the multiplicity of separate fund raising campaigns by state and national health and welfare agencies. The group was also concerned with the inequity between needs and amounts raised.

The National Heart association, which was one of six agencies which declined to join the federation at the beginning, recently voted to become a part of the group, boosting the total of member agencies to 19.

Lois Soderman Is The Bride Of Robert Buckland

Miss Lois Joyce Soderman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Soderman, 616 North 8th street, Gladstone, became the bride of Robert Joseph Buckland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Severin Buckland, of 1421 North 22nd street, Escanaba, in a double ring ceremony at the rectory of St. Thomas the Apostle church in Escanaba.

The vows were spoken before Rev. Arnold Thompson. Attending the couple were Miss Arlene Buckland and Donald Soderman.

The bride wore a dark green suit with gray accessories and a corsage of pink roses and white gladioli. Miss Buckland was attired in a wine suit with gray accessories and her corsage was white carnations and white gladioli.

Mrs. Soderman selected an elephant gray street length dress with black accessories for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Buckland wore a blue-green suit with black accessories. Both mothers had corsages of pink roses and gladioli.

Home In Escanaba
The wedding breakfast for fourteen guests, immediate members of the families, was served at the Log Cabin, followed by a reception for 300 at the Legion club rooms in Gladstone. Cut flowers and the tiered wedding cake centered the bridal table.

The newlyweds after a wedding trip through northern Michigan and Wisconsin, will live in Escanaba at 1421 North 22nd street. The bride, a Gladstone high school graduate, is employed by the Michigan Bell Telephone company. Mr. Buckland who was graduated from Escanaba high school is with the Inland Steel corporation, sailing on the Great Lakes.

Volunteers Aid In Big Weather Reporting Job

Washington, D. C.—Not only the weather, but weather reporting can be anybody's business.

And increasingly it is. The recent appointment of a 12-year-old West Virginia farm boy to the U. S. Weather Bureau's staff of "cooperative observers" added a young-blood recruit to a useful group of hobbyists who now number about 5,600.

These cooperative observers operate from Alaska to the Caribbean, from the Hawaiian Islands to Puerto Rico, notes the National Geographic Society. Without pay, they gather local weather information which aids Uncle Sam's meteorologists to keep track of the far-flung data a weatherman needs.

The volunteers, living mostly in small towns and rural areas, include ranchers, storekeepers, postmasters, doctors, lawyers, bankers, editors, farmers' wives—and at least one Benedictine monk. Several hundred have served at least 25 years; some more than half a century. There are cases where the job was inherited from a pioneering parent.

Equipment Provided
Cooperative reporters worked with the first U. S. Weather service—that of the Army Signal Corps, set up in 1870. In 1891, when Congress established the U. S. Weather Bureau, the Signal Corps' 1,745 willing helpers went along to be reinforced later by other thousands as the field expanded.

Using government-provided thermometers, a rain gauge, and a small lattice instrument shelter, the observers take daily readings of temperatures, study wind direction and strength, rainfall, snow and other developments. This information, forwarded usually in weekly or monthly reports, is processed in the Bureau's field stations for statistical publication.

Besides the 5,600 "sub-stations" of the nonpaid general observers, the Weather Bureau uses several thousand others, of part-time, paid reporters, who telephone, wire, and write in frequently on specific factors, such as river levels, flood, emergency forest and crop conditions.

Through still other cooperative arrangements, weather observations come in from merchant ships at sea; from civil air pilots; from other federal departments, and from various cooperating state agencies. The Bureau's Baltimore office, for example, has a system whereby it receives regular and frequent weather reports from Maryland State Police officers.

Communications Speed Up
In 57 years of existence, the U. S. Weather Bureau's methods of collecting, analyzing and distributing weather information have marched with the progress of communications.

Today, planes, which carry not only trained observers but self-recording instruments, check on all-important conditions of high altitudes. Television has joined the press and radio in spreading information. To telephoned, telegraphed and teletyped reports have been added pictures and weather maps sent by instantaneous wire and radio transmitters.

Radar screens pick up distant rain or snowstorms. There are radio-sonde transmitting sets, carried high by balloons, that register air pressure, temperatures, and humidity, sending out short-wave signals to receivers below.

There are even robot stations, from which regular reports are made by electronic devices which need human servicing only at intervals. The Weather Bureau is testing two in Canada and Greenland, where winter storms are made. The Caribbean "hurricane watch" has been augmented by several automatic observation stations at the tip of Florida and elsewhere, which send out warning signals on barometric pressures and wind conditions.

When you feel like talking about the weather, there is lot to talk about.

Council Appoints City Clerk

WE HAVE NO REASON to doubt that George Harvey, Jr., who was appointed city clerk by the council Thursday evening, is qualified and capable of doing a good job in the position that he will assume on February 1.

Nevertheless, the action of the council in going beyond the list of city employees to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of Carl E. Anderson does, we believe, require some explanation. For one thing, it offers no hope to city employees that if they do a good job in their present positions and perform their assigned functions efficiently and well they can anticipate promotions when the opportunities present themselves.

The discouragement for promotions in city employment likewise is not inclined to attract the highest quality applicants for city positions in the future.

The council, we believe, should have taken these factors into consideration in filling the vacancy in the city clerk's office. The charge has been made that political considerations influenced the appointment. In fairness to Mr. Harvey and in the absence of contrary evidence, we can only assume that he was selected for the position because a majority of the council felt that he was the man best qualified for the position after a careful appraisal of the applications on hand.

If the appointment is political, the logical sequence is for the council to name Mr. Harvey as city assessor, a position that would qualify him for a seat on the county board of supervisors.

Mr. Harvey does not automatically become city assessor by virtue of his appointment as city clerk. Charles Schmidt is the Escanaba city assessor, both in fact and in name. The late Carl E. Anderson, who served for years as city clerk and city assessor, was appointed assistant city assessor at the time Mr. Schmidt was elevated to the city assessorship.

"Peace Offensive"

TWO MONTHS AGO Leon Dennen predicted, in an NEA dispatch from Paris, that the Kremlin would launch a "peace offensive" in western Europe and turn its attention to the Far East. It is evident that this prediction was based on accurate knowledge, and that it is now in the process of coming true.

A couple of Moscow's favorite sounding boards, Marcel Cachin of France and Palmiro Togliatti of Italy, have been given the job of announcing the latest party-line switch. It is a radical switch, but by no means unfamiliar. The comrades' tone is suddenly mild. War between communism and capitalism is not inevitable, they say. Complete collaboration between East and West is possible, and so on.

Meanwhile the Communists are winning the civil war in China. Russian activity has been present, but not obtrusive, in that struggle. The Chinese Reds have been helped by concessions won by Russia after Japan's surrender and by Japanese arms left behind by the Russians. But for a long time the Kremlin apparently hoped, by remaining in the background, to foster the misconception that the Chinese Communists were not part of the world apparatus of Marxism, but simply agrarian reformers.

It was only toward the close of the Chinese war, when victory seemed assured, that the Red leaders proclaimed their allegiance to Russia and began parroting Moscow's attacks on western democracy. Once the Communists have taken over the Chinese government as seems inevitable, one may expect to see more Russian activity in that country.

The Communists have a big job ahead. Even the Chinese find it hard to conquer China. But China can be a tremendous prize for the disciples of Marx and Lenin. If they can keep their promises, improve the people's lot, build strength and win widespread domestic support, communism will be in a position to control half the northern hemisphere.

But this will take a lot of work, and a lot of help from Russia. The Soviet government, like our own, can only do so much.

So it is conceivable that if the Kremlin is going to go all out to consolidate its agents' gains in China, it must ease the pressure on the west. Its evident purpose is twofold: to free money, men and thought for the problems of Asia, and to lure America into a false sense of security which will prompt this government to curtail Marshall Plan spending in Europe.

The Inaugural Address

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S inaugural address was a bold outline of American determination to combat Communism, not only in this country but elsewhere in the world where forces of democracy are battling to preserve human rights and individual freedom.

In his address, Mr. Truman left no room for doubt that American foreign policy will countenance no compromise and no appeasement with the Red forces. He offered once again the hand of American friendship to other countries of the world in the cause of world peace but insisted that the peace should be and must be predicated upon freedom.

Mr. Truman called for a security pact with Western Europe and promised to assist those countries aligned against Communism with American economic and military aid. Particularly he offered the American help to those nations which show a willingness to do their utmost to help themselves.

A plea for unity in the cold war against Russian expansion highlighted the president's inaugural message. In effect, he said that the United States alone cannot stem the tide of Communism in all corners of the world but that the United States can and will help democratic forces fight off the threat to their independence and their liberties.

The president reasserted his faith and the faith of the United States government in the United Nations and promised American cooperation to seek ways and means of strengthening the world organization.

Mr. Truman's domestic program has brought forth an ever-increasing wave of opposition and criticism but on the subject of foreign affairs, which he dealt with almost exclusively in his inaugural address, the president proclaims an American policy that commands the support of a large majority of the American people.

Truman Supports Electoral College

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE got a figurative pat on the back by President Truman at a Washington dinner for presidential electors Wednesday night. The president said that he was in favor of keeping the electoral college "as it has been for the last 160 years."

Thus, Mr. Truman threw his support for the maintenance of an archaic and undemocratic, as well as an unfair system of electing the president of the United States.

Under the electoral system now in effect, a candidate receiving the highest popular vote in any state receives all of the electoral votes of that state. It makes possible the election of a president who fails to receive the highest popular vote of the entire nation. This has actually happened three times in the history of this country. In effect, Mr. Truman says that this is all true.

A proposed constitutional amendment provides that each state's electoral vote would be divided among the candidates in proportion to the popular votes that they receive. This system is the logical plan that should be followed in a democracy because it would encourage heavier voting and because it would increase the value of individual votes. As it is now a Republican vote in the Solid South is meaningless and a Democratic vote in a rock-ribbed Republican state like Vermont, is likewise meaningless.

Revision of the present electoral system has been denied over the years because of the so-called Solid South, but Southern Democrats are now beginning to realize that the system does not work too well even for them. They claim that they are being ignored by their own party because their Democratic electoral votes are taken for granted.

FROM ALGER TO TWAIN

Regularly every year someone polls this or that group of New York children to determine how many of them ever have heard of Horatio Alger Jr., that prolific author of the rags-to-riches books popular 30 years ago. And every year the pollsters find that the name means less and less to the younger generation. The Children's Aid society, maintaining this quaint custom, has just revealed that only 9 per cent of New York's newsboys could identify Alger, and that probably is the worst blow of all to Alger fans, since a fair proportion of his heroes were recruited from newsboy ranks.

The kids were able to identify some of today's best known comic-strip characters, and that observation apparently is offered as a startling observation on youth's current reading habits. Possibly, though, it might indicate that the newsboys look through the papers they sell with more interest than did yesterday's followers of Horatio Alger. And for those who would have us believe that the youngsters' reading tastes have hit a new low level, we should note that the New York newsboys ranked Mark Twain as their favorite author. And that is pretty good proof of the contention that good literature will outlive the bad, even though the bad seems temporarily to be "all the go." No cause for lament, we say, if "Tom Sawyer" has elbowed out "Phil the Fiddler."

Take My Word For It . . . Frank Colby

VARIOUS QUESTIONS STUMP THE READERS

Miami: Earl Godwin, the commentator, amused me by using the word "burglarious," for I had never heard that word before.—Mrs. R. S. T.

Answer: Godwin didn't make it up, although the word is unfamiliar to most of us. You'll find it in most good dictionaries, and it occurs frequently in the works of Blackstone. It means, "pertaining to or involving burglary." Pronounce it: bur-GLAIR-ee-us.

Washington: A paper here speaks of "crimes ranging from pickpocketing to car theft." Did some reporter make up "pickpocketing"?—M. R.

Answer: It's new to me. But I find pickpocket listed as an intransitive verb in Merriam Webster's, "to steal articles from pockets." Since pickpocket is a verb, it is quite proper to form a verbal noun by adding -ing: pickpocketing.

Gelveston: Please, how is the word banal

Democrats Have Much Timber

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington. — Republican emotions in the face of all the fuss and feathers of the inauguration run the gamut, as Dorothy Parker once put it, from A to B. That is to say, from haughty disdain to contempt, with a touch of wistful envy bravely concealed.

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who is understandably bitter because the Democrats reduced the number of Republicans on the foreign relations committee of the Senate and thereby kept him from a place, called it a Roman holiday. It is that certainly, except that these symbolic days when the populace turns out to see the power of the state on parade go back a long way before Rome. It seems to me that the responsible managers of the Republican party should look on this outpouring of the forces of the Democratic party with something more than disdain. Anyone who views the spectacle at all realistically must see beneath the frothy surface the vigor and the new strength that came out of the Nov. 2 victory.

Mingling with the visitors from out in the country, you get a yeasty sense of participation. This is their triumph and, what is more, they are looking ahead to four years from now with the belief that almost certainly somewhere in the crowd is the man who will succeed President Truman as standard-bearer of the party and, if they have anything to say about it, as president.

NEW FACES IN CONGRESS

There are, first of all, the new senators and representatives whom Washington is just beginning to know. Among them are outstanding men certain to be heard from in the next four years.

But here, too, are the new governors who came in with the unexpected uprising of last November. Gov. Adlai Stevenson, of Illinois, has an exceptional opportunity to make a national reputation, and attention is already focused on him.

At 49, with a background of wide experience in public life both at home and abroad and with a distinguished family name, he has a chance to clean up the fearful mess left behind in Springfield by the corrupt Republican machine. The task will be far from easy, since the corruption went so deep. But this means that success would be that much more conspicuous.

Another governor who will be watched with special interest is G. Mennen Williams of Michigan. At 37, with no prior experience in office-holding or campaigning, he defeated the veteran politician, Kim Sigler. The story has been widely told of how he put a mortgage on his home when his rich Republican family declined to have anything to do with what seemed a fruitless effort.

Williams had the active backing of virtually all trade - union organizations in Michigan with its highly concentrated industry. They may, of course, demand so much from their new governor that he will be put under serious embarrassment.

BOWLES IN LIMELIGHT

Still another governor is Chester Bowles, of Connecticut. Against the advice of most of his sensible friends, he ran for the governorship in a state that seemed overwhelmingly Republican. Like Stevenson, he will have a tough row to hoe since his legislature is Republican.

The new-found vigor of the party is evidenced not only by individuals. Negro leaders from various parts of the country are here, many of them attending an inauguration for the first time and participating in the events connected with it. This is understandable, since if any single bloc of votes contributed to the Democratic victory, it was the Negro bloc.

But here is a question for the Republican managers. Is the Negro vote to be permanently attached to the Democratic party? The Democratic jubilation may, of course, be premature. There is a possibility that the victory of Nov. 2 will be dissipated in ancient quarrels. In the first test, which incidentally had a look of petty spite in it, enough Old Guard Democrats joined the Republicans to stop the attempt to exempt from the amusement tax tickets sold to inaugural functions.

But no matter what the future may hold, the present outpouring is a formidable one. It implies growth and development in the direction indicated by the electorate last fall. In the light of this demonstration, waiting for the Democrats to trip and fall hardly seems adequate.

pronounced?—B. S.

Answer: If we are to believe the dictionaries, we may say "BAY-n, buh-NAL, buh-NAHL, BAN-ull." It is my belief that BAN-ull prevails in Standard American, with BAY-n as the runner-up.

Powersville: What do you think of the pronunciation "EX-em-PLAR-y" for the word exemplary?—Mrs. S. W.

Answer: Some dictionaries list it as second choice. But it appears to be obsolescent. The Standard American pronunciation is: eg-ZEM-pluh-ree. The word means "commendable; deserving of imitation."

Kansas City: Should one use a double period after an abbreviation ending a sentence, as, "FOB Kansas City, Mo."?—B. J. H.

Answer: No. The period after the abbreviation also serves to end the sentence; Cheney, Wash.: Recently you wrote "Each year at about this time, . . ." Do you consider "at about" as proper?—G. M.

Answer: You've raised an interesting point of grammar. "At about" is correct or incorrect, depending on whether you consider the word "about" as a preposition or as an adverb.

If you think of it as a preposition, "determining approximate time," the "at" would be superfluous, and the sentence would read: "Each year about this time, . . ." However, diagramming the construction shows "about" to be an adverb meaning "approximately." "At about this time," then, is correct, just as "at approximately this time" is.

THOSE VITAMINS—Transportation of perishables being what it is today, only oldtimers can recall the days when an orange was a Christmas treat, and the only lettuce to reach the table was in summer time from the backyard garden.

Now fresh fruits and vegetables are on the market every day in the year and the nation is healthier for it. The average life expectancy has increased and is expected to go still higher as today's well-vitaminized generation grows to maturity.

Today orange juice is a standard item in the diet of the infant. Back in 1901 one-fourth of the newly born failed to survive beyond age 24; while according to conditions in 1946 this survival point is postponed to age 59. There are other health factors than the feeding of orange juice and we are discounting none of them.

COMING THROUGH—An aide of ours, conferring with Al Geart's, Northwest Fruit company manager, over a mid-morning cup of coffee, discussed with him the effect of California's bad weather on the supply and price of citrus fruits. Most people think it will result in a sharp market increase, Geart's was told.

"That's not the case," Al replied. "When California doesn't supply citrus fruit, distributors buy more in Texas and Florida, and make it available in the northern sections."

FORTUNATE—This brought a general discussion of the subject of the good fortune of the people of the United States in supplying practically all of their own food needs.

"Some people don't appreciate this country's wealth," Al said earnestly. "We can have crop disturbances like the California freeze—but to the south as far as the West Indies there are other sections that produce citrus fruits. Up north here we have our potatoes, lumber and other products of the temperate areas to be bought and distributed."

Our aide considered this and took another sip of coffee—grown probably in Brazil, roasted in the U. S., sweetened with Michigan beet sugar, and creamed with cream from Delta county cows.

"The contrast is not hard to point out," Al continued. "Take for example Canada. People there have been without lettuce and other green vegetables for several months because of a breakdown in exchange. Parke Sawyer told me some time ago that he had, for several weeks, been sending lettuce by air mail to friends of his in Canada."

THE ADVANTAGES—Despite the natural advantages enjoyed by the United States it was not until the last half-century that refrigerator cars began to roll on our railroads, and swift trucks brought green vegetables daily to city markets. Perhaps because they need no refrigeration, bananas were one of the first fruits to achieve the distinction of long distance transportation in large quantities. They are brought to United States ports by shiploads from Central America and consigned to distributors all over the nation.

Thus we see that without refrigeration service and fast transport

INTO THE PAST

Ten Years Ago

Fayette—Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rangette are the parents of a daughter born Jan. 21 at St. Francis hospital.

Escanaba—Mrs. Edward Lucas, Mrs. Thomas St. Jacques, Mrs. Harry Watkins, Mrs. Louis Amussen, Mrs. Robert O'Neil, Mrs. F. W. Dayton, Mrs. John Bartel, r., Dr. Gordon Gleich, Rev. Carl Berger, Robert Moreau, Vaughan Belanger and Frank Hirn have been cast for the opera, "Little Women" by Eleanor Freer, which will be presented at an open meeting of the Escanaba Woman's club.

Manistique—Mrs. Al Van Dyck left for Trails, British Columbia, this week, called by the illness of her sister.

Twenty Years Ago

Manistique—Searchers found the frozen body of Bobbie Burns, 75, well-known local woodsman, lying beside the trail to the Albert Dean camp in Steuben Sunday. Lying beside him was his pack of weekly washing. Indications are that Burns was either overcome by the cold or became ill on his way to the Dean camp, where he was employed.

Gladstone—Miss Dorothea Johnson, a physical education student at NMCE, has been elected president of the senior class at the school. Miss Johnson is president of Delta Sigma Nu and is a member of the debating team and the Girl's council.

erator service and fast transport few of the perishable foods would, even today, reach distant markets.

FROM THE NORTH—The food delicacies of the northland are not the only ones to achieve the distinction of refrigeration and fast movement by rail and truck to northern markets. Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries grown on Michigan farms are thus transported to the south, and millions of pounds of Great Lakes fine food fishes go to markets as distant as New York and San Francisco—iced and refrigerated to arrive in fresh condition.

Every year there are shipments of live fish to eastern markets—yes, live fish. Suckers taken from Little Bay de Noc waters are kept in live boxes and then loaded, still wiggling, into tanks of water on railroad cars or trucks and dispatched to New York City. Roy Jensen of the Jensen & Jensen fish market tells me that a couple of years ago the shipments annually totalled between 150,000 and 200,000 pounds. Production has fallen off in the last couple of years due to the invasion of the sea lamprey.

FUTURE IN IT—Agricultural agents in many counties of the Upper Peninsula foresee a good future in the production of small fruits, such as strawberries and raspberries. Right now, however, production is limited because only seasonal shipments can be made. Once frozen plants to process the berries are later marketed are needed if there is to be material increase in the growing of small fruits.

Soil and climate of the Upper Peninsula are ideally suited to the growing of strawberries and raspberries, and those produced in Northern Michigan have a fancy flavor not found in those grown in better climates. Perhaps the time may come when these berries will be devoted to small fruits, providing a new source of income for Upper Peninsula farmers.

New York (AP)—Things are different since "my sec" arrived. Too different.

"My sec" is short for "my secretary."

My sec is short herself. She is also blonde, blue-eyed and pretty. She is also married to a Mormon and has two children. She is also one of my wife's best friends. Her name is Laurie.

It wasn't through honest merit that I joined the men of distinction who have office secretaries. It came about in this wise:

One morning I came to work and found a small, disheveled blonde fiercely burrowing into the knee-high litter of books, magazines, papers, letters and old cigar butts atop my desk. She was making strangled noises, so I pulled her out—and recognized Laurie.

When I asked if she had lost one of her children in there or something, she said:

"No, silly, I'm working for you now—cleaning up this mess."

"Who hired you?"

"Your wife, Frances, did. She came in here the other day and saw this pile of junk on your desk, and she's afraid it'll topple over and kill you. I'm to help you get rid of it."

"And where's Frances going to get the money to pay you?"

"Out of her fur coat fund," said Laurie.

Well, that stopped me. I had given Frances some money at Christmas for the family fur coat fund. This fund has been going on ever since we were married eleven years ago. But every time it has gotten big enough to buy the left forefoot of a silver fox pelt, we have had to dip into the fund for one emergency or another.

As a matter of fact, my wife lately has fallen into the wistful habit of calling it the "Frances Boyle Memorial Fur Coat Fund"—in the theory that by the time there's enough in it to actually buy a fur coat she will be wearing wings and a long white robe (cotton).

So if Frances herself now wanted to rob her own fund to hire me a secretary for a few weeks, what could I do? Nothing.

"Okay, Laurie," I said. "I give up. You're me sec. What's first?"

She pulled open a crowded desk drawer. A 1937 edition of the World Almanac and a withered apple core (probably late 1946) tumbled to the floor.

"Let's get rid of all this junk," she said sternly. Like my mother, Laurie looks at the ceiling while she's talking to you—if she's really serious. And Laurie was looking at the ceiling.

For days and days she has been throwing away the dear, wonderful rubbish of my life with ruthless hands. Every lost handful takes something out of my heart. I stand at the water cooler and watch her. I have to. There is no place for me to sit at my desk. My sec has my chair, too.

My desk is now almost as neat and clean as my employer's conscience. My favorite cockroaches have fled it as from a plague—completely disgusted.

My sec is a splendid sec—competent, warm-hearted, hard-working and loyal. But all the nice letters atop my desk I intended some day to answer are now neatly filed inside my desk, where I never will be able to find and answer them. I used to know whether everything was. Now I know where nothing is. I have traded the organized chaos I knew for a confused order. I can't understand. Secretaries, like money, can come to the average man too late in life for him to know what to do with.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington.—While Washington concentrated on making Harry Truman the 32nd president of the United States, a lot of important things happened in the rest of the world just the same. Here are some of them:

Bevin Scolds U. S. Ambassador — While President Truman was bawling out British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks, Foreign Minister Bevin was doing the same to U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas. Douglas called on Bevin with a protest against the movement of British troops around the Palestine-Egyptian border. The ambassador's call was on the direct instruction of the White House, but Foreign Minister Bevin told him Britain would move troops as it pleased regardless of advice from the U. S.

Secret Deal With Tito — At long last, the trade deal with Marshal Tito to wean him further away from the iron curtain. Tito himself suggested the deal shortly after Moscow announced it planned to cut Russian-Yugoslav trade by 90 per cent. Delighted with the Tito overture, the state department authorized the American embassy in Belgrade to proceed rapidly, and we will soon trade American copper, machinery and oil for Yugoslav copper, lead and zinc. This may be a big step toward a new friendship with the once-belligerent and anti-American Yugoslav leaders. (The Yugoslav people generally have been pro-American.)

Boycotting The Latin Dictators — Suddenly and secretly the state department has canceled a U. S. Air Force flight to Peru. Reason: Peru is now under military dictatorship. The Air Force, however, its ear attuned to motors rather than political niceties and with one of its big ex-aimers, Gen. Harold George, now running the Peruvian Lines, was all set to send a good-will flight to Peru. Whereupon, Acting Secretary Lovett stepped in, threatened to take the matter to the White House unless he idea was dropped. It was dropped.

Meanwhile, President Truman himself has cautioned the state department about recognizing the new military dictatorship in Venezuela. President Gallegos, the man the Venezuelan army exiled, traveled with Truman to Bolivar, Missouri, and this is something Mr. Truman definitely understands.

Hoover Runs True To Form — Herbert Hoover is handing out information about the same way as when president of the United States. The other day Secretary of Agriculture Charlie Brannan wrote the ex-president asking for a copy of the Hoover commission's preliminary report on recognizing the agriculture department.

Since Brannan would be called to put the report into effect, naturally he wanted to begin studying it.

Hoover replied that he was sorry, the information was secret.

What Hoover didn't know is that Agriculture Dean H. P. Rusk of the University of Illinois, who headed the sub-committee studying the agriculture department, had already sent copies of the report to the heads of every agriculture college in the country. In other words, about every agriculture expert had the report except the man who would have to make it work.

British Monkey Wrench — The British have thrown a monkey wrench into the North Atlantic pact. At a secret meeting with Undersecretary of State Lovett last week, British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks presented an official demand from London that Britain's African colonies and Dominions be included in the new alliance against Russia. Lovett and the French ambassador, Henri Bonnet, were vigorously opposed. Bonnet was especially indignant, pointing out that this proved French fears that Britain is more interested in defending her African bases and colonies than the defense of the European continent.

Reds Run Chinese Army — The American embassy in China has notified the state department the Chinese Communist army is being commanded by several hundred of Russia's top army officers — including at least ten generals.

The Russians are reported in constant touch with their Siberian headquarters and with Moscow. Russian radio technicians accompany them for this purpose.

No. 1 Russian leader is reported to be a Soviet general called Tasenko who helped direct the Red army advance against the Japanese in the closing days of the war. Last week he engineered the downfall of Tientsin.

Navy Loses Old Friend — House Armed Services Chairman Carl Vinson with more say-so on military matters than any congressman, will fight for a full 70-group Air Force—even if it has to be paid for out of Army and Navy budgets.

Vinson's idea is to spend more for the Air Force and less for the Army and Navy. He is especially gunning for naval aviation, plans to put all except sea-duty planes into one Air Force.

Interesting fact is that Vinson used to be Navy's chief spokesman on Capitol Hill—until he decided that the Air Force was the nation's first line of defense.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

W. Averell Harriman, the roving Marshall Plan ambassador, decided at the last minute to attend the president's inaugural. He cabled from Paris, asking two tickets to everything. But the inaugural committee was already sold out. Reason for the bulging crowds at inaugural events: The inaugural committee gave out invitations, expecting 50 per cent to be turned down. Instead, everyone but a slim 2 per cent accepted. . . . Under the fire laws, 5,300 persons — all Washington's barnlike National Guard Armory is permitted to hold. Closer to 8,000 people, however, jammed it for the inaugural concert and inaugural ball. . . . The Senate is looking up these days. Most of the newcomers are basketball — player size—over six feet tall.

Even The Lowly Washboard Is Missing, Say The St. Julianas On Return From Trip To Italy

SEE THIS?—Mr. and Mrs. John St. Juliana of Hermansville recapture with their son, John, highlights of their three-month trip to Italy. Because of shortages the St. Julianas brought back few souvenirs other than pictures. They had not visited their homeland, and their many relatives there, in 39 years. They have lived in Hermansville since first coming to the United States.

Mrs. John St. Juliana of Hermansville used to get tired after doing the family washing. But, she says, she will hardly consider the subject from now on.

She and her husband returned in late December from a three month visit in Vicenza, Arzignano, Italy, their former home. Both had not been there since they came to Hermansville 39 years ago.

While visiting with her two sisters and two brothers and their families, and Mr. St. Juliana's brother and two sisters, Mrs. St. Juliana was amazed to find that most Italian women cannot afford washing machines. They don't even have washboards. Every week they fill their tubs with soap and water, and rub the dirty clothing over the back of their hand until it is scrubbed to a spotless white.

Glad To Be Back

"No, I don't want to go back, even to visit for awhile," Mr. and Mrs. St. Juliana both maintain when asked about their visit. Both were glad to go, but glad to come back, too.

They left Sept. 12 aboard the "Saturia" for Italy, from New York. They left Italy Nov. 26, aboard a slow ocean steamer. They traveled along the coast of Yugoslavia and Turkey before leaving the Mediterranean, because of the shipping strike. They arrived in Norfolk, Va., a month after they left Italy.

"Throughout Italy, the food situation is very poor," Mr. St. Juliana says. "Cornmeal mush is the staple for the majority of Italians, and they can't afford to go to restaurants where a greater variety of foods could be bought."

"On the streets," Mrs. St. Juliana says, "Italians look good. But if one sees them in their homes, it is a different story. Most Italians have one article of clothing for dress wear, and in their homes wear whatever they happen to have."

Seasoning and fats, the all important elements in many Italian dishes, are very scarce and are sold at a tremendous price.

An American dollar is worth approximately 660 francs or lire in Italy. It takes at least 660 francs for a meal; 700 of them for two pounds of meat; and 600 for a pint of oil. A plain, cotton housedress sells for 11,000 francs; a man's overcoat, 45,000 francs; and an umbrella, 1,700 francs. Most Italian workmen earn the equivalent of $3 to $4 in American money per day.

Cannot Afford Coal

For the average Italian family, considered small if there are less than seven children, it is quite a problem to stretch a franc over food, clothes and shelter.

"Very few Italians can afford to buy coal, of which limited amounts can be bought," Mr. St. Juliana says. Most of them, as far as he could see, were content to burn the prunings from their grape trees in the small stoves common in Italian households. Mrs. St. Juliana says one of their ovens will hold about two loaves of bread.

A considerable amount of building is now being done in Italy. The St. Julianas say that new houses are fashioned after modern American homes. There is less ornateness in their design, and ceilings, traditionally high in Italian homes, are now being lowered.

Railroads in the country are nearly all rebuilt, the Hermansville couple reports, and modern depots mark the path of these. Not many cars were seen on the road by the St. Julianas.

When asked if the Italian people seem disheartened by their plight, both Mr. and Mrs. St. Juliana replied:

"No, they accept it. Of course, for them it is not so bad. They have never had as much as the average American family, and many of them were born in circumstances just as bad as the present. To live as we do here

MINE OUTPUT HIGH IN 1948

But Demand For Metals Was Not Met Fully

Washington, (SS) — Although 1948 production from American mines forged ahead of the output of the previous year, full demands for certain metals were not met, partly due to domestic postwar requirements and partly due to the rehabilitation needs of war-scarred regions abroad.

The tonnage of minerals, metallic and otherwise, mined in 1948 exceeded that of 1947 by about 4 per cent, according to a preliminary report just issued by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. The dollar value was 26 per cent higher. Fuels made the most impressive gain of any mineral group, with the value of mineral fuels produced increasing some 30 per cent, partly a reflection of the record quantity of petroleum extracted.

Steel and aluminum production in 1948 surpassed the previous year output, but the major non-ferrous metals, copper, zinc and lead, lagged behind. Large gains in the quantity of bauxite for aluminum making and molybdenum for steel alloys were achieved, though both were produced at rates a third below 1944 figures. Mercury production was exceedingly low, 40 per cent lower than in 1947 and the smallest since 1933.

Iron and steel production in 1948 was the third greatest in history with some 88,000,000 net tons of ingots and castings. It would have undoubtedly equalled the 1944 peak of 89,600,000 tons, the report states, except for the work stoppage at coal mines in April and, with lesser effects, shortages in transportation for coke and pig iron. Labor-management difficulties account in part also for the shortages in the output of copper, zinc and lead.

The United States was obliged to import nearly two-thirds of its bauxite needs during the year, but the achievement of a peacetime record aluminum production was made possible partly by a peacetime record output of domestic bauxite. Magnesium output was intentionally held low, awaiting wider consumer acquaintance with the advantageous properties of this metal.

Crude petroleum production increased 8 per cent over 1947, and exceeded 2,000,000,000 barrels for the first time. Marketed production of natural gas increased 10 per cent. Coal production, both bituminous and anthracite, decreased, the first some 5 per cent of the 1947 record output of 631,000,000 tons. The anthracite decrease was slight.

Governor Williams Expected In Escanaba For Opening Of 11th Annual Ice Show, Feb. 3

G. Mennen Williams, governor of Michigan, is expected to attend the gala opening of the 11th annual ice revue in Escanaba on Feb. 3, it was announced today by the ice revue committee.

The governor is expected to arrive here by plane on the afternoon of Feb. 3 and will be guest of the ice revue committee until the following afternoon when he will return by plane to Detroit.

Escanaba's ice revue will boast again of the music of William Clark at the Hammond organ, and will feature unique, effective costuming for the various acts. The first portion of the show will consist of a skating dramatization of "Alice in Wonderland," and the last half will feature soloists and variety acts.

Among soloists who will appear in the show, with the sanction of the U. S. Figure Skating club, are Jeanne Groos, Mary Groos, Robert Schwalbach and Mary Goodreau.

The entire revue will be presented on colored ice, in unique settings designed by Don Devlin and his properties committee. It begins Feb. 3 and will be presented each night through Feb. 5, and on the afternoon of Feb. 6.

Requests for tickets from out-of-town persons have been coming in rapidly the past few days. Tickets are available at Gust Asps' and the West End Drug store. Theodore Sura is in charge of ticket sales and ushering.

A new seating arrangement has been devised this year. Two rows of seats on the ice on either side of the rink will be offered for those wishing box seats. All others will be sold at general admission prices. The change was recommended by Jon Flanagan, nationally known professional skater, whose home is here.

The stage for the show has been moved to the south end of the exhibition building at the U. P. State Fair grounds. Acoustics have been improved and the "echo" eliminated.

been known to follow a trail more than four days old, and to pursue a quarry 138 miles, even across water. So highly considered are the dog's talents in this field that some courts of law may accept such identification as evidence.

Relatively few bloodhounds appear in dog shows, despite their aristocratic lineage. Mostly the breed is kept for special work, in the United States and Latin America, as well as in Europe. Not only do they track down criminals, but also lost persons.

Contrary to popular opinion, bloodhounds, unless especially trained in aggression, seldom attack their quarry. Usually they merely bay loudly at the cornered one.

War Cut Registry

At various times, dog fanciers have worried about the bloodhound's declining numbers. Around 1900, on the other hand, an English writer reminded his readers that the scarcity of preceding years was no more, thanks to breeding efforts by interested owners.

Again, a new shortage began developing by the period just before World War II. England's Kennel Club then registered an average of 140 bloodhounds yearly. During the war the number registered fell to 10. In the three years afterward, it was successively 21, 14, and 21.

The first purebred bloodhounds were shipped to the United States from England about 1890. Today, this country is reported to have more of the trained animals than any other. It was estimated in 1948, however, that there were only about 150 man-trailing bloodhounds in service in the United States, used mostly in police work in New York State, the South, West, and Middle West.

FAIR DEAL PLAN WILL BE COSTLY

Half Million Per Year In Delta County

Washington, D. C., (WNS)—The "Fair Deal" social security program will cost Delta County workers and industry a minimum of more than five hundred thousand dollars a year, it was learned today.

This is in contrast to the approximate $180,000 a year now paid out in old-age and survivors insurance taxes, according to latest available social security payroll records for the County.

While details of the Administration program for overall social security have not been worked out, the basis for paying the cost has been pretty well determined by the Federal Security Administration.

Right off the bat the program will increase the payroll tax from the present one per cent to a total of 3.25 per cent. All sums paid by workers will be matched by employers, and this means each will kick in over $290,000, more than the combined total now paid.

Moreover it will be paid on all income up to $4,000 per year, in contrast to the present $3,000 limitations. Costs of the new program are estimated on the basis of present taxable payrolls, so the increased taxable income will raise the total cost of the program above the five hundred thousand plus approximation.

The increase in the old age and survivors insurance tax from one to one and a half per cent will add about $88,000 to the cost in Delta County, before the tax on the extra thousand dollars of income is computed.

The one-fourth of one per cent tax for the health program will cost in the neighborhood of $45,000, and this would be upped considerably when the eventual tax reaches a maximum of two per cent.

The tax for temporary disability benefits will take another $88,000 out of the County, while the one per cent tax for permanent disability adds up to another $180,000.

Dr. Beck is well known in this region, having brought his lumberjack orchestra to the Gladstone Rodeo on several occasions.

Dr. Beck traveled to Upper Michigan, Nova Scotia, Maine, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Washington, Oregon and California to gather material for his book. He interviewed veteran axemen, sawyers and river hogs to record the folk songs and ballads sung in the old-time woods camps. These ditties fill most of the pages in the book. Reproductions of old Michigan log marks and anecdotes concerning early Michigan lumbering days also are of much interest.

'Kingston' House Combines

Salt Box And Garrison Styles

The KINGSTON

With its salt-box roof, garrison style front, large central chimney and barn-red and white color combination, the "Kingston," the house-of-the-week introduced today by the Home of the Week Plan Service, might easily be mistaken for a genuine old Colonial house.

Its interior also presents some features that were typical of the houses of a century ago—large rooms, abundant storage facilities and fireplaces in living room, dining room and master bedroom. Modern conveniences unknown to our forefathers are included.

The outside dimensions of the house are 33x26 feet and the cubage of the house is 23,000 feet. Insulation of second floor walls and roof is recommended.

Has Off-Center Entrance

An off-center entrance, balanced nicely by the window placement, is characteristically Colonial in its simplicity. The front door opens into a small hall with two coat closets, one for family wraps, the other for guests' apparel. Doors at either side of the hall open into the living room at the left and the dining room at the right.

The living room, finished in knotty pine with a beamed ceiling, has a Colonial fireplace in one inside wall as its focal point. Floor dimensions of the room are 15 x 16 feet. If a larger room is desired, the space designated for use as a den could be included in the living room. An archway might also be cut in the partition between den and living room, connecting the two rooms so that the den could be utilized as a library or music room.

A door at the far side of the fireplace, balancing that from the entry hall, gives access to an L-shaped rear hall offering complete circulation through the house.

An angle stairway to the second floor leads up from the rear hall. The basement stairs are reached through a door opening on one side of the hall. Factors In Home Design

While the prospective builder may have a very definite idea how he would like the exterior of his home to appear, he should not forget that a house is built to live in and therefore the house should serve the family in convenience, comfort, adaptability and living habits, to the greatest degree. The requirements, together with climatic conditions, the contour, orientation and character of the site, will determine how the rooms should be placed, and gradually a practical living plan evolves that is suited to family needs and adapted to the property, the climate and your living conditions.

Arrange the required rooms in a plan that will allow the maximum of living comfort and convenience, ease of housekeeping, charm of interior appearance and an hospitable air. Then let the exterior design of the house grow logically, you will probably secure a much more livable home, which will have an individuality of its own and will bespeak the inhabitants' personality.

Press Reporter Attends Swedish Riksdag Opening

By MRS. HERMAN G. NELSON
Stockholm, Sweden, (By Air Mail)—"It seems like a dream, yet a pleasant reality, that we have today witnessed a ceremony in all its old world splendor and glory, seen a democratic monarch and heard him speak, all this with a social-democratic regime. One would not think it possible in this day and age, but it has just happened." Thus I quote a fellow reporter, Joseph Buchalter, special correspondent for the Oregon Journal of Portland, Ore., as we left the Throne room in the Royal Palace here shortly after noon today. We had just witnessed the colorful and ceremonious opening of Sweden's parliament and heard King Gustaf V, in his 91st year, give his 42nd annual throne talk as king of Sweden.

In the 41 years he has been king, Gustaf V has never missed being present for the opening of his nation's Riksdag. He has been in ailing health for several months and there was some question if he could open this session of parliament. His speech this year was short, only 140 words, but it was optimistic in tone and conveyed the spirit of confidence that Sweden can consider itself fortunate in many ways. The King spoke in a clear and loud voice but when he had completed his talk he had a rather severe coughing attack. Newspapers commented that it had been an effort for the king to speak this year.

Attends Riksdag Opening

Attendance at the opening of Sweden's Riksdag is a thrilling event from the time one comes to the castle until one has left it behind. My husband attended the opening of the Riksdag in 1930 and again last year but this was my first experience. Admission tickets are difficult to get.

As I arrived at the castle and walked up the hill south of it, known as Slottsbacken, a uniformed cavalryman came by, followed by two carriages with two horses spanning each. One was the royal carriage with the crown on top and the other a simpler one for the women royalty. People were lined up outside the castle and the inner courts to later get a glimpse of the Crown Prince, Prince Bertil, Prince Carl and Prince Wilhelm. I proceeded to the west side, showing my "blue" admission ticket to many medal-bedecked attendants of the court as I proceeded up several flights of stairs and down a long wide hallway where later the King was to come. Here, in the alcoves, thronged many people admitted there by ticket only, who wanted to see their King pass.

The throne room is long and narrow, lighted by two rows of crystal chandeliers, seven in each row. High above on a wide shelf are 10 pieces of statuary on each side, each marble piece having its own story and significance. As one came into the room at the north entrance, one proceeded down a short flight of stairs, just past the throne chair and down to the further side, where seats are raised so that one can view the entire room easily. The seats are blue velvet cloth and bordered with a band of yellow cloth. There is a center aisle leading to another door at the east entrance through which the members of the two chambers of Riksdag were to enter. This door was guarded by two uniformed soldiers wearing tall black bearskin caps. Above this door is a small balcony where the musicians sat. Another small balcony was used as the broadcasting booth so that all of Sweden's people could get a description of the event and also hear their King.

At 11:20, the ladies of the court came through the west door. They were dressed in their usual black velvet court dresses with a low neck and ruffled sleeves of white satin banded with black velvet ribbon. Jeweled tiaras and necklaces were worn by some and others had beautiful lace collars. They wore long white kid gloves and carried a black velvet wrap over their left arm. Mrs. Aina Erlander, wife of the Prime Minister, also was dressed in this manner and was the first lady in the first row in the lower balcony just to the right of the west door. Just below them sat the clergy representatives, among them Archbishop Erling Eidem. Across the room was another balcony for the diplomatic corps.

When the ladies of the court had been seated, the east door opened again and members of the Riksdag came into the room in sombre black suits and overcoats, each one carrying a high silk hat. The first chamber took seats on the left side of the room (they would be to the King's right when he faced them) and the second chamber took seats on the right side and being more of them than in the first chamber they filled the remaining seats on the left side. Then from the north door at 11:45 a. m., came high officers of the navy and army and they took their seats in front and back of the Riksdag. The diplomatic corps, accompanied by their wives in formal wear, also came through the north door. As the men stood in line, the women proceeded to the first row of the balcony on the other side of the room. We noticed especially the representative from Egypt with his little red fez and the dark-skinned smiling man from Abyssinia.

Crown Princess Enters

Just at 12 o'clock noon, the music began. A lady-in-waiting appeared in the high balcony above the balcony used by the court ladies. Crown Princess Louise came forth, dressed in her royal mantle of purple bordered with a wide band of ermine, the mantle carried by a male attendant. She bowed the traditional three court curtsies, it seemed once toward the diplomatic corps and then once to each of the two chambers. She turned around slightly to see how the mantle was being placed. Then came Princess Sibylla with her sweet smile and she also made the same three curtsies. Then came Princess Ingeborg, wife of Prince Carl, brother to the King. Then followed the three oldest of the four daughters of Princess Sibylla. They took their places to their mother's right, each dressed simply in white. Several more ladies in waiting entered and also three train-bearers.

Just before the royal women had entered, a special guard of honor of six young men in uniform took their places behind the throne chair. When the royal women had come into their places, another guard of honor lined up on either side of the stairs at the west entrance. An armor-clad group of 24 young men, dressed as soldiers did in the days of Karl XI, with tricorn hats, marched down the center aisle to music and stood in the aisle near the east door at the farther end of the long room. It takes longer to tell what happened in five minutes than it did to be carried out but at 12:05, the Kings' Song was played and King Gustaf entered the room. On the stairs he was assisted by Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf and Prince Bertil, both of whom were bedecked in all their emblems and orders and ribbons. When the King had come down the stairs, he walked alone and made the traditional bows to the chambers, the diplomatic corps and to the women royalty and court ladies. Those few moments brought tears to my eyes and tightness to my throat. The thought came to me that this venerable monarch was still a Crown Prince the day I was born in Western gothland. This was his 42nd message to the Riksdag and the beginning of his 42nd year of reign.

Prince Bertil Present

The King suffered a coughing attack after he had given his talk, which was in a loud and clear voice. There was emphasis when the King invoked "Guds valsegnes" (God's blessing) upon members of the Riksdag and their deliberations and performance. All stood during the time that the king sat and delivered his talk. Only members of the chambers stood as their respective spokesmen made their replies.

As one looked to the King, Prince Bertil was on his right, Prince Carl to Prince Bertil's right. The Crown Prince was to the left and Prince Wilhelm to his left. Prime Minister Tage Erlander sat below the King and a little to the right.

At 12:15, the armored guards, again to music, marched up the aisle, a slow march. The King and the other four members of the male royalty bowed and departed. So did the Prime Minister and two other ministers, also the honor guard. Then the royal women made their three court bows and departed, followed by the diplomatic corps, the men first and then the women. Members of the two chambers also left and then the army and navy officers, all in reverse order to their entrance.

American Women Attend

I met and talked to three American women who also had the privilege of attending the opening of Riksdagen. They were Miss Signe Rooth of New York city, Mrs. Helen Englund-Nelson of Chicago and Miss Ruth Gustafson of Galesburg.

As Mr. Buchalter and I walked out, we stopped to look more closely at the King's throne and the robe of red velvet, embroidered with many crowns in gold and colored thread. It was lined with ermine. The jeweled crown which had lain on a table to the King's right and the sceptre on a table to his left had already been removed for safe keeping for another occasion. King Gustaf has never worn the crown, but it is always placed on a chair next to the throne. During the ceremony and before, while the people were coming in, to take their places, a uniformed guard stood at each table.

We went out through the east door through the south portal and around to the west entrance to watch the various dignitaries leave. There was quite an audience. Karin Koch, whom Escanaba will remember as the woman member of the Swedish delegation attending the Swedish pioneer centennial festivities last June, came walking in her long velvet dress, wearing her pleated ## doctor's hat.

As we left the castle, we commented that we had seen something unique and beautiful, history in the making in a frame nearly two centuries old. We wondered, as did everybody else, if King Gustaf will recover his strength so he can participate in still more openings of the Riksdag. It was readily apparent that he still has great vitality as he sat straight and kingly on the throne throughout the ceremony.

C. Of C. Acts To Protect Interests Of Harbor Here

A resolution asking Congressmen Charles Potter and U. S. Senators Arthur Vandenberg and Homer Ferguson to support the rivers and harbors measure recently presented in Congress, was passed by the Manistique-Schoolcraft Chamber of Commerce at its regular meeting Thursday evening.

The measure is of importance locally because long sought improvements on the local harbor are dependent upon its passage.

Another matter which the chamber will refer to members in congress is the excise tax on gravel. The chamber is acting on the suggestion of George Bishop of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau which is seeking to have the tax repealed.

The secretary reported that his office had received many requests from out of town concerns for the credit rating of various individuals. The chamber went on record stating that this information is not a function of the organization and for that reason will not be furnished.

The chamber referred to Fire Chief Elmer Boal the conduct of a contest sponsored by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce for the best fire prevention campaign conducted by cities of the country.

Sportsmen's Club
Votes Favoring
Winter Spearing

Opening of Indian Lake for spearing of northern pike was the subject for lengthy discussion at the regular meeting of the Schoolcraft County Sportsmen's club Thursday evening.

The club, some time last fall, had passed a resolution urging the state department of conservation to take such action and last Tuesday, the county board of supervisors had passed a resolution supporting the sportsmen's club stand. The discussion was taken up for the purpose of giving further hearing to members of the local resorters association who oppose the spearing proposal. Agner Dehlin, as spokesman for the resorters, stated that practically every member of the association was strongly opposed to the proposal. He contended that winter spearing would decimate the number of fish in the lake and that poor fishing has been one of the chief worries of resorters for the past couple of years.

Those favoring spearing said that although the lake has been closed to spearing for many years, fishing has deteriorated. Some contended that spearing of northern pike would have beneficial results upon other species.

It was announced that the state conservation department would make a survey of the lake this coming summer and would act according to its findings.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at Germfask on Thursday, February 3, for the accommodation of members residing in that area. Many people from this vicinity have signified their intention to be present at this meeting.

WHAM!—John Strophich, Escanaba light heavyweight, is one of the hard punchers entered in the Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves tournament here Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. Strophich will compete in the open division. About 40 boxers will be in action during the two nights of boxing competition. A brisk advance sale of reserved seat tickets is reported.

Record Entry List Likely In Golden Gloves Meet Here

An entry list that seems likely to set a new postwar record is shaping up for the Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves boxing tournament, the largest entry list since prewar CCC days when the CCC camps provided the majority of the leather pushers for the Golden Gloves competition. Prospects that the number of entries this year will exceed 50 are highly encouraging. Moreover, the quality of boxers appears to be the best in the history of the boxing classic.

Scheduled starting time for Golden Gloves bouts this year is 8:15 p. m. each night but the heavy entry list may require the local committee to move the opening bouts up to an earlier hour.

Heavyweight competitors, of which there was a dearth last year, will be more abundant this year.

The Escanaba training center has three heavyweights, two of them in the open class, and Manistique's entry list also includes a novice heavyweight. At least one heavyweight also is anticipated from the Soo and Marquette may send over one of the big fellows.

Prospective entries from the local training center include the following: Jim Valentine, 135, Wayne DeRusha 110, Rod Lindstrom 160, John Rademacher 175, James Froberg 135, Dave Syverson 126, Joe Bakran, 147, Orville Van Effen 160, Charles Olson 145, John Strophich 175, Tom Fraser, heavyweight; Don Little 135, Larry Stein 160, Len Sharkey 150, all of Escanaba; John Bloniarz, heavyweight; Fred Bloniarz, Heavyweight; Steve Polisek 147, all of Perronville; George Dougherty 150, Leonard Fox 145 and Stanley Cumerich, all of Manistique.

Probable entries from Manistique are John Hruska, heavyweight; Paul Crawford 160, Llewellyn Chartier 147, Cletus Chartier 135, Emmett Fagan, 135, Robert Gould 135, Duane DeSautel 135, Wayne Tunnell 127, Clyde Rogers 127, Vernon Johnson 127 and Bob Minor 119.

Marquette's entry list is not in yet but Trainer Leo Legacy reports that the Twin Cities will be represented by about a dozen boxers, evenly divided between Marquette and Menominee.

Caspian will be represented by one boxer and Ishpeming will have one entrant. Two or three competitors from Marquette are indicated. The American Soo and the Canadian Soo have indicated that each will have five or six entries for the Escanaba tournament.

If the record entry list actually materializes, it probably will require at least 20 bouts on opening night.

Hogan Is Perfecting New Putting Style

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 22 (P)—Ben Hogan—with a new putting style—is ready to move into top contention today in the Inaugural $10,000 Long Beach Open Golf tournament.

Heading into the second round of the event at Lakewood Country club, four crack challengers are tied for the lead with sub par first round scores of 67, and Hogan is just one stroke behind.

Leading the parade of par-busters are Jimmy Demaret, Skip Alexander, Jim Ferrier and Chick Harbert, all with four under par 67's.

Hogan, at 68, is tied with five others in this bracket, and out of the surviving field of 141 players, 35 broke regulation figures in the initial 18 holes.

Most people think Hogan's game, including his putting, could hardly be improved on. But not Ben. He's "experimenting" with a revised stance, a different stroke at the ball.

Cooks Spanks Perkins To Keep D-E Loop Lead

Perkins, Jan. 22—Cooks remained firmly entrenched in first place in the Central Upper Peninsula D-E Basketball league by downing Perkins, 32-24, here last night. Perkins seventh and eighth graders topped the preliminary, 32-14.

Walters and Cutler bagged five buckets apiece to pace Cooks to triumph.

It was a sad first period that spelled defeat for Perkins. After being held scoreless the first quarter while Cooks piled up 10 points, the Perkins cagers did all right, but they couldn't catch up.

For the last three quarters of play, Perkins outscored Cooks, 24-22.

RAPID RIVER WALLOPS
TRENNARY, 61 TO 28

Rapid River, Jan. 22—Rapid River served notice it is still a big factor in the Central U. P. D-E Basketball league championship race by wallowing Trenary, 61-28, here last night in the River cagers' hottest display of basketball this season.

Eight Rapid River cagers shared in the scoring, getting at least one field goal each.

Lawrence Mahnor, Ed Page and Horace LaBumbard each tallied 10 points, which made them second to Trenary's Hicks, who collected 11 counters, and Donald Nelson and Leonard Nelson each posted nine points.

An oddity of the game was the exact duplication of efforts of brothers Don and Len Nelson. Each had four field goals, one free throw, three free throws missed and three personal fouls.

In the preliminary, St. Joseph's of Escanaba seventh and eighth graders defeated Rapid River seventh and eighth graders, 39-16.

Powers, Jan. 22—Bark River-Harris nipped Powers, 35-33, in a Central U. P. D-E Basketball league overtime game here last night. Powers was handicapped by the loss of two regulars, Bob Corrievau and Harold Nelson, in the extra period. They went out on personal fouls.

Powers led, 14-13, at halftime. They were tied 21-21 at the third quarter and 29-29 at the end of regulation playing time. Success in hitting long shots enabled Bark River-Harris to win.

AAC Will Operate As 7-Team League

Chicago, Jan. 22 (P)—The National Football league and All America Conference are still at arms ready to continue their war through 1949 at an estimated cost as high as $2,000,000.

The AAC, ending its meeting today, will operate next season with seven clubs. The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees merged. The home field will be Yankee stadium.

At the same time, two NFL clubs will be operating in New York at the Polo grounds. The Giants will share dates there with the Boston Yanks who were granted a franchise in New York as the NFL ended its winter convale yesterday.

Eskies Drop 28-26 Battle To Ishpeming

Ishpeming, Jan. 22 (Special to Escanaba Daily Press)—Led by Carl Corneliuson, lanky center, the Ishpeming Hematites defeated the Escanaba Eskimos, 28-26, here last night.

With less than a minute to play and Ishpeming leading, 26-25, Dick Pryal, Eskymo guard, was fouled as he attempted a lay-up that looked for all the world like the game-clincher. The shot missed, however, and on the foul Pryal was given two free throws.

He made one of the two to deadlock it at 26-26.

Then, with 35 seconds to go, Corneliuson made a tip-in field goal for a 28-26 Hematite triumph and another heartbreaking loss for the luckless Eskymos.

It was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way, but the Hematites had the closing punch that paid off. Escanaba led, 9-5, at the quarter, 16-14 at the half and 22-19 going into the final quarter.

The Hematites pushed nine points through the hoops to four for the Eskymos to salt away the victory in the closing moments.

Gary Abrahamson was the only Eskymo player who managed to hit the basket consistently. He matched Corneliuson's effort with five field goals and one free throw.

Western Kentucky, Hamline Continue Winning Streaks

New York, Jan. 22 (P)—Western Kentucky and Hamline, two of the country's four unbeaten major college basketball teams, kept their clean slates intact last night.

Coach Ed Diddle's boys from the blue grass country invaded Miami, Fla., and trounced the University of Miami, 73 to 45. The largest crowd ever to see a Miami game, 4,516, saw the visitors chalk up their 14th straight.

Hamline likewise had a breeze winning its 13th in a row, a 95-48 triumph over St. John's of Minnesota.

Knoeked out of the unbeaten ranks by the Oklahoma Aggies on Thursday, St. Louis' Billikens, rated the No. 1 team in the nation last week, bounced back against hapless Tulsa. Although "Easy Ed" Macauley tallied only 10 points the Billikens won easily, 58-40.

COMPETITION IN MILE
Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (P)—Something new went into the mile today—competition. And it took a pair of foreigners to put new life into the run for the American indoor mile championship. Ingvar Bengtsson, a stocky 25-year-old Swedish fireman, churned to victory in the 12-lap mile at the fifth annual Philadelphia Inquirer games last night, but he could beat Holland's Willy Slykhuys by only a scant yard.

BASEBALL BONUS PINCH
New York, Jan. 22 (P)—Baseball's bonus law begins to hurt this year when nine major league clubs approach spring training with 16 "prospects," costing about $400,000 who cannot be farmed out. Ready or not these players must be kept in the big show. In each case the athlete received more than the legal maximum—$6,000 in the majors—for signing as a free agent.

The Petersen classic has a prize list of $64,000 and De Vito's offers $36,000. Virtually all of the nation's top bowlers will go to the firing lines before the two meets wind up Feb. 20.

Trojans Set For Felch '5' Here Tonight

St. Joseph's Trojans will play Felch tonight at 8:30 in William Bonifas gymnasium. In a preliminary at 7 the Felch and St. Joseph's reserves will meet.

DEFENSES RECORD

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 22 (P)—Miles W. (Mike) Casteel today vigorously defended his record as head football coach at the University of Arizona. Meantime, a storm of pros and cons over his dismissal from the job raged among alumni groups.

Longest kickoff return during the 1948 National Football league season was by Joe Scott of the New York Giants against Los Angeles—99 yards.

Jerome Davis of the Chicago Cards made the longest punt return of the National Football league 1948 season when he lugged one back 70 yards to a touchdown against New York.

interesting highlights that will be brought to the listeners' attention.

With the exception of Bob Reynolds, who broke his leg in the recent game in Marquette, the Hawks will be at full strength for tonight's clash.

John Gorechan, who suffered a forehead cut in Marquette that required five stitches, showed up for practice Thursday night and said he was ready to go.

The Participants

With Gene Harris in the goal, Gorechan will share defensive duties with Lollie Rose, Jim Ward and Clint Marenger. Bab Petaja will work with Bud Hanson and Dud Paquette on one line. The "kid" line, composed of Bud Kenneally, Bud Provo and John Cousineau, is set to go, as is a third group of forwards composed of George Petaja, Conrad Pratt and Lloyd Grabowski.

Manager Ben Artwick, Stambaugh goalie who recently worked with the Eagle River Falcons in the Michigan-Wisconsin league, announced his probable starting lineup as follows: Artwick, goal; Joe Hanold and Julius Artwick, defense; Jack Holmes, center, and Ed Baker and Robert Weeks, right and left wing, respectively.

Art Gardner, Gladstone, and David Paalen, Stambaugh, will officiate.

Patty Berg Leads Tampa Golf Field

Tampa, Fla., Jan. 22 (P)—Patty Berg was a solid four strokes ahead of the field as the $3,000 Tampa Women's Open Golf tournament went into its third 18-hole round today.

The stocky Redhead, conquering the tricky layout of the 6,093-yard Palma Ceia course, rapped out a two-under-par 68 yesterday for a halfway figure of 145. She bettered by five strokes the previous women's competitive course record of 73, shot by Mrs. Babe Zaharias in winning the inaugural event in 1947.

Mrs. Zaharias and Kathryn Hemphill of Greensboro, N. C., both pros, tied that 73 yesterday, but were no better than fourth and fifth for the 36 holes. Mrs. Zaharias hit 151 at the halfway point and Miss Hemphill 152.

Amateur Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, was second with a steady 74-75-149.

Louise Suggs, playing her first professional tournament, was third with 150, as she added 76 to a first round 74.

Drug Store Bandit Has Gun Duel With Detroit Youth, 15
Detroit, (AP)—A brash boy of 15 took on a drug store robber in a gun duel Tuesday night. Accounts to police indicated the boy, Eugene Newsom, a high school junior, might have won. A pistol-waving, "surly" fellow, wearing an improvised mask, walked into the store in early evening. He ordered Mrs. Genevieve Baumgartner, 48, proprietress, and two customers into a back room. Then he forced Eugene to give him $135 from the cash register and told the boy to join the others.

Eugene fired five shots and the robber two. The boy was unhurt but he said he saw his adversary double up and scream in pain as he fled to his car and drove off.

DEER STUDIES WILL BE MADE

Haugen Named Biologist
At Cusino Refuge

More facts about Upper Peninsula deer are to be sought in a stepped-up research program at the conservation department's Cusino Wildlife experiment station east of Munising.

New headquarters buildings are to be erected near Shingleton mainly by Pittman-Robertson funds when final approval of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service is secured.

Appointment of Arnold O. Haugen as biologist in charge also is announced. Haugen, a department game warden for several years, recently has been associate professor in the department of zoology, Michigan State college, teaching courses in ecology and wildlife management. Haugen, at one time in charge of the Swan creek wildlife experiment station near Allegan, left the department in 1947 to join the college staff.

Proposed new buildings will include a combined laboratory and office building, garage and workshop, and two residences. Old CCC buildings which have served as Cusino headquarters for many years are in an isolated location, far from a plowed road.

Future research projects will seek better information on deer herd management and on management of sharp-tailed grouse, prairie chickens, beaver and otter, predator-game relations, and investigations of game birds that may be introduced into the Upper Peninsula with the hope that they become established there.

Delegation Will Discuss Chinese Peace With Reds

capital was "strongly reported in the process of a changeover" by which the Communists would get the city, "any minute."

Chinese press dispatches to Nanking newspapers reported that Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, the government's North China commander, was preparing to resign and that the Reds would enter the city Sunday or Monday.

Nanking and Shanghai were quiet without any indication that Chiang Kai-shek's departing would produce any violent reaction.

Chiang himself was resting at his ancestral home in Fenghua, 210 miles southeast of Nanking. He left a farewell statement which was so ambiguous that those he left behind could not figure out its meaning.

Chinese sources said the original version made no mention of "retirement" or "resignation," but left the door open for his return should events prove favorable.

Chang Chun then got Chiang on the telephone, and the statement was changed at the generalissimo's suggestion so that in the official English translation it read like this:

"With the hope that hostilities may be brought to an end and the people's suffering relieved, I have decided to retire."

The statement then said that Vice President Li would exercise the powers of the president in accordance with China's constitution.

"My earnest prayer," his statement added, "will have been answered if the Communist party henceforth comes to the full realization of the grave situation confronting the country, orders a cease-fire, and agrees to commence peace talks with the government."

Capital Surrounded

There was no mention of any hope or expectation of a return. Observers in Shanghai predicted that unless some progress toward peace with the Reds is made quickly, Chiang will try to come back.

(They asserted, however, that this time it won't work. Chiang has quit before in the 22 years he has ruled China and always was asked to return. This time, say these observers, there is no real pull demand for Chiang.)

(The question of a separate peace in North China remains up in the air. Associated Press Correspondent Spencer Moosa reported from Peiping.

"Both Chinese and foreign circles," Moosa wrote, "are convinced big events are in the offing—either a peaceful changeover or a Red attack."

(The Communists reinforced their positions around the ancient capital of China with 60,000 more troops. Peiping was alive with rumors the Reds would attack within 48 hours unless terms for a peaceful surrender of the city, previously agreed upon, were carried out.)

Groundhog Society To Honor Truman As Brother Prophet

Quarryville, Pa., Jan. 22 (P)—Come groundhog day, President Truman will get an honorary membership in the slumbering lodge of groundhogs because in predicting his own election he "qualifies as a prophet as unfailing as brother groundhog himself."

In an annual proclamation W. H. Hensel, 3rd, secretary and "brood" treasurer, commented: "The lodge proposes to put at the disposal of our new secretary of state, Dean Acheson, a battalion of groundhogs. In a few hours they will dig so many holes under the iron curtain it will be

Barbara Ann Feels 'Free' Now That She Is A Pro

BARBARA ANN SCOTT

By GEORGE TUCKER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

New York—Barbara Ann Scott finds skating professionally like getting out of school.

"You're so free," said the 20-year-old girl who won an Olympic championship last summer then gave it up to turn professional. "At first," she went on, "I looked at myself in the mirror to see if I was any different. I kept thinking, 'How strange: I'm doing what I have always done—but getting paid for it.'"

Being an amateur, the Canadian Snowflake said, was like living in a strait-jacket. "If I accepted a soft drink, I would have to hide the label from the photographers. I couldn't speak to motion picture people. I had to move through a world of people and remain apart from them."

Barbara Ann Scott has great personal beauty. She is blonde and blue-eyed and 20, though she looks 17.

Her professional debut was as the star of a show at the Roxy theater on Broadway. Her dressing room revealed mementoes people from everywhere sent or brought in.

Skating on a tiny stage rink was a new experience for Barbara Ann at first. She had to be careful to keep from landing in the third row. Now she is leaving for Washington, to rehearse on a large out-doors rink.

Tiny, feminine, beautifully proportioned, bright as a maple leaf, Barbara Ann Scott began skating at six. When she was seven, she received her first pair of single-runner skates. This was at Christmas. Having the measles, she wore them in bed.

When she was nine she saw Sonja Henie, and ever since she has dreamed of the glamor of that night. "Of course I was influenced," she said. "All little girls dream of white boots and beauty on ice."

When she was 10 she entered her first competition for the Junior Canadian championships. And at 15 she was the lady skating champion of Canada. She was 16 when she won the North American championship in Madison Square Garden.

Miss Scott went to Europe in 1947 and won the European title. Into her title bag, too, went the championship of the eastern and western hemispheres. Then last summer she won the Olympic title.

In addition to her skating, Miss Scott is a pilot and holds a student's license.

Her contract in New York at the Roxy theater is for eight weeks, and then—

"And then, I hope, the movies." She is still in the dream that began thirteen years ago at Christmas, when she was in bed.

Aerialist Tumbles In First Appearance At Saginaw Circus

Saginaw, Michigan (P)—A young trapeze artist making his first circus appearance missed a grip while flying through the air Tuesday night and fell to the floor of Saginaw's auditorium.

The performer, 21-year-old Walter Long, was reported in good condition today at Saginaw General hospital. He was suffering a back injury.

Long joined the Polack Brothers Circus as a laborer last summer, hoping to become a trapeze artist. Finally he convinced the Flying Wards, the trapeze troupe, that he was ready to join their act.

Last night Long appeared with the troupe for the first time. After doing several stunts on the swinging bars high above the audience, Long leaped from a trapeze to catch the hand of another performer on another trapeze. He missed.

While the audience gasped, he fell to the edge of the safety net halfway to the floor, toppled from there to the edge of the balcony and fell to the floor 20 feet below.

The Flying Wards will continue their act tonight without Long.

Ropeways, of which the simple ski tow is an example, have been used for transportation over irregular terrain for at least 1,900 years.

Ineffective and the cold war will be over."

Groundhog day is Feb. 2.

Japanese Children Sold Into Slavery; Rings Investigated

Tokyo, Japan (P)—The news paper Asahi reported that 2,500 Japanese children have been sold into slavery by a broker in northeastern Japan.

Asahi said an investigation resulted from a mother's complaint that the employer of her 15-year-old daughter refused to return her ration card when the child ran away and returned home.

The Yamagata prefecture standards office discovered that the girl was sold for 2,500 yen (about $70 U. S.) to Manjiro Ino, 65, who posed as an insurance broker, Asahi reported.

Ino was alleged to have admitted selling his own daughter among 2,500 children sent to various so-called "farming" villages. Asahi reported some of the children were put to work on farms, but that most were used in small handicraft industries.

The Japanese government also said it is investigating another wholesale child sale ring in Fukushima prefecture.

Child slavery formerly was a common practice in Japan. It has been prohibited by occupation authorities. Japan's notorious system of prostitution was maintained in the same manner.

Plans For Houghton Sanatorium Revived; Cut To 100 Beds

Lansing, Jan. 22 (P)—The State Tuberculosis Sanatorium commission today was launched on a drive to obtain funds to build a proposed sanatorium at Houghton. After a conference with officials of the state building division, commission members decided to request that Governor Williams ask the legislature for an additional $500,000 appropriation for the project.

In 1946, the legislature furnished $500,000 to start the proposed $1,000,000 institution. A site was acquired, largely by gifts, but building was never started.

On the basis of a survey conducted by the Tuberculosis Association and the state health department, the plans were reduced from a 150-bed sanatorium to 100 beds. The survey indicated that would be enough to alleviate a serious Upper Peninsula shortage of facilities for tuberculosis patients.

Why Pollsters Erred Explained In Report

By MARJORIE VAN DE WATER
Science Service Psychology
Writer

Washington, — The election polls failed to pick the man being inaugurated here because the pollsters used a rule-of-thumb method instead of sound scientific theory. They failed to make any major improvement in their techniques since 1936 in spite of the advances in psychological science in that time.

This is the conclusion of Dr. Daniel Katz, psychologist and specialist in the field, associated with the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, after a careful analysis of the three major polls.

Even before November, Dr. Katz said in reporting his analysis to a forthcoming issue of the Journal of Applied Psychology, there was evidence that the polls could not continue their successful record without a change in basic approach as well as specific techniques.

But the pollsters, he feels, were hampered by a blind empiricism that led them to consider that what had worked before "was somehow sacred and could be relied upon to work in the future no matter how conditions changed."

Not Much Different

Actually, Dr. Katz points out, the polls, except for the Roper poll, were not so different arithmetically, at least, from previous forecasts. In 1936 Gallup under-estimated the Democratic Party vote by 6.9 percentage points, in 1940 by 2.5 points and in 1944 by 1.5 points. The underestimates in 1948 was 5.0 points.

Crossley underestimated the Democratic presidential vote by 6.9 per cent in 1936, 1.6 per cent in 1944 and 4.7 in 1948.

But Roper, who had never missed a presidential election by more than one percentage point and who had been within 0.2 per cent of the Roosevelt vote in 1940 and 1944, had the largest error of all in 1948. His underestimate of the Truman vote was 12.4 percentage points.

Dr. Katz does not agree with those who explain the failure of the polls in the overconfidence of Republicans which may have caused them to stay away from the voting booth. If more had turned out to vote it would have resulted in a Truman landslide, not a Dewey victory, he says.

"Dewey lost not because the Republican farmers stayed away from the polls but because many of them voted for Truman."

And neither the polls nor the press detected in advance this change in voting trend.

But the undecided voter was one source for the errors of the polls. The Roper survey in August, 1948, found 15.4 per cent of the people undecided and Gallup and Crossley still had about 8 per cent undecided in October.

It was a mistake, Dr. Katz believes, to assume that these undecided people were at a midpoint between the two major candidates and would distribute their votes in about the same way as those who had already made up their minds.

"Many people were undecided between Truman and the minor party candidates or between Truman and not voting at all."

But the undecided voter is in the minority. He could not have contributed more than about one per cent to the five per cent prediction error.

Changed Their Minds

Another source of error is in the voter who tells the interviewer one thing and then does something entirely different on election day.

One example is the New Dealer who was dissatisfied with Truman and said before the election that he would vote for any candidate save Truman. Then when it came to the actual act of filling in the ballot, he voted for the party most representative of his belief. And there is the farmer who originally planned to vote for Dewey, became alarmed by the fall in farm prices and the Republican position on the support of farm prices and voted in terms of what seemed to him his best interests.

The answer to the problem of the undecided and mind-changing ing voter is not just in keeping on polling until the morning of election day, Dr. Katz holds. Rather, it is necessary to get more information about what makes the voter choose as he does—his basic social, economic, and political beliefs and their relative importance to him.

Thorough studies of this kind require much more theoretical planning than the polls have thus far had.

The pollster's method of picking his sample comes in for its share of criticism by Dr. Katz. The quota-control method used by all the major pollsters sets up a cross-section which in theory represents the general population proportionately in sex, age, socio-economic status, urbanization and geographical area. Interviewers are assigned quotas on this basis and told to bring back results in just so many of each class. But in practice it is left mostly to the interviewer to judge what group a particular individual is in.

Since the interviewers are generally middle-class themselves, they naturally make the mistake of picking too many like themselves and under-represent the poorer people as well as the very rich. Both Gallup and Crossley made corrections intended to eliminate this bias but they never did succeed in getting rid of the Republican overestimates.

Helicopter Mail Pilot Perishes In Los Angeles Crash

Los Angeles, Jan. 22 (P)—The first crash of this far-flung city's helicopter mail shuttle service took the life of a young pilot in a crackup in a busy downtown street.

Harry A. Slemmons, 27, of Inglewood, perished as the Rotorplane, taking off last night from the roof of the terminal annex post office, grazed the parapet and plunged into busy Macy street, narrowly missing traffic.

Officials of Los Angeles Airways, which operates the Shuttle service between Los Angeles and various Southern California cities, said it was the first crash since the service was inaugurated here in October, 1947.

The local helicopter mail service is the only one of its kind in the nation and has operated in all sorts of weather, including recent snowstorms.

Slemmons, a former Army air force pilot, had been flying the helicopters 10 months. The plane, a Sikorsky S51, had just been loaded with 36 sacks of mail bound for the airport. Martin J. Burke, attorney for Los Angeles Airways, said: "We suspect there was an unequal distribution of weight."

The plane struck a power line as it crashed, but there was no fire. All mail was recovered.

Plane Low On Gas; Navy Radar Guides Cadets In Safety

Patuxent, Maryland (P)—Navy radar guided an air force transport to a safe landing Tuesday just before the plane bringing 30 cadets to President Truman's inauguration ran out of gasoline.

Asked after landing the big C-82 at Patuxent Naval air station how much gas he had left, Maj. Gerald McNulty, the pilot, replied:

"Just enough."

Until picked up by the ground controlled approach (GCA) radar at Patuxent, the five crew members and 30 air force cadets "sweated it out" for a couple of hours with their radio equipment gone dead.

The plane was enroute from Bergstrom Field, Austin, Tex., to Bolling Field, Washington. Maj. McNulty said after crossing the Appalachian mountains he found all Washington fields closed by weather and then his radio equipment went out.

The Patuxent GCA finally located the plane at Cambridge, Md., 50 miles southeast of Washington, three hours after the station received the alert. With the aid of "haphazard" voice radio communication restored aboard the plane it was brought in safely.

A Baffled Deer

Residents of Van's Harbor were surprised one late afternoon last week to see a beautiful doe making its way from the woods on the north between the buildings until it struck the ice of the bay, which proved disastrous. Repeated attempts were made to cross but the animal found it impossible to stand up and two of the men watching, fearing that dogs would pick up the scent, walked out to where it lay, cautiously helped it up and guided it back to land. Being completely dazed and exhausted, it offered no resistance when guided to a shed, but accepted the haven with apparent appreciation. The conservation officer was notified and he took it away the next morning to a game refuge.
